SAVE THE DATE

ISTH 2017 Congress | Transcending Scientific Boundaries
July 8–13, 2017
CityCube Berlin/Messe Berlin
Messedamm 22-26, 14055 Berlin, Germany

Berlin is always worth a trip, and there's no better time than this July. For one action-packed week, the German capital will host this year's International Society on Thrombosis and Hemostasis (ISTH) medical congress, the world's largest gathering of experts in thrombosis, hemostasis and vascular biology. With higher attendance expected than ever before – 13,000 expected – and a boost in scientific submissions, the ISTH 2017 Congress will cover the fields' most talked about topics, including atherothrombosis and stroke, coagulant and anticoagulant mechanisms, management of thromboembolisms and other areas of expertise.

Aimed at deepening understanding of bleeding and clotting disorders and ultimately improving patient care, the ISTH congress will offer valuable insights and stories for your readers by showcasing new clinical findings, diagnostic and therapeutic approaches and scientific studies and advancements through an extensive line up of educational and sponsored sessions and activities. To see this year's program or to discover more about the ISTH's commitment to science and research or the congress itself, the ISTH press team is happy to assist you with any enquiries, as well as arranging an individual interview with a member of ISTH leadership. In case you have already marked the dates in your calendar and plan to attend, you will be pleased to know that congress registration is already open and free of charge for members of the press.

Our top priority is enabling you to get the most out of this year's congress and facilitate your reporting on the latest research and discussions it opens up among the medical community. In order to address and meet your particular interests and needs, we have created a short online survey that will allow us to provide you with a tailored congress itinerary of key sessions and onsite activities. Your feedback is much appreciated and will only take five minutes or less. You can find the link here.

As the congress comes closer, we will provide you with frequent updates. If you have any questions or comments in the meantime, please contact us directly. You can also find more information about the ISTH 2017 Congress in our latest press release or via the PDF attached.
